About Kimberly Farley

Kimberly Farley began her career as an occupational therapist but left the field of pediatric OT to invest in full time home education. She graduated her three children from homeschool and they have all attended their first choice private colleges with significant scholarships. Kimberly was first a mom using CLT in her homeschool before she joined the company. She is now the Director of Homeschool Partnerships at CLT where she works with both homeschool organizations and Partner Colleges. Kimberly remains actively involved with homeschool students by volunteering as director and coach of a speech and debate club and serving the national organization.

Kimberly is available as a speaker for the following workshops. All workshops can fit in a one hour session with time allotted for audience questions. Workshops can be customized and adapted to various time frames upon request. Digital presentation options for PowerPoint are preferred but not required unless otherwise indicated on the workshop description.

If you wish to book Kimberly as a speaker, please contact her at kfarley@cltexam.com.

To Test or Not to Test? That Is the Question!

Parents of All School-Aged Students

Testing does not need to be an anxiety-ridden experience. How can you utilize assessments in an edifying way and benefit tangibly from the results? This workshop will address questions related to testing and assessments, their benefits and limitations, and how to use them in your homeschool. The impact and prevalence of testing in society will be considered, along with common terms related to testing and college admissions.

Soaring Through the Admissions and Scholarship Process

High School Students and Parents

This workshop will focus on information families should know throughout the college admissions and scholarship application process. It will include common misconceptions about admissions, ways to stand out, a discussion of test-optional pros and cons, and information about the Classic Learning Test. (This workshop is a broad overview of several topics covered in more detail in the next two sessions.)

Keep It Classy! A Practical Guide to Academic Preparation for College

Parents of Middle and High School Students

This workshop focuses on what parents and students need to know about academic preparation for college. Methods discussed will apply to a variety of homeschool styles. Other topics will include grades, GPA, and college admission testing. A discussion of the pros and cons of credit by testing and dual enrollment along with how to measure student readiness for them will be included.

Not Just a Face in the Crowd: Standing Out in Admissions and Scholarship Applications

High School Students and Parents

This workshop covers the aspects of applying for college and scholarships that extend beyond your academic preparation. The discussion will include extracurricular activities, volunteering, the college essay and interview, test-optional admissions, and other considerations that can affect the process. Timeline suggestions for each year of high school will be provided.

I Got My Acceptance Letter! Now What?

Juniors, Seniors, Recent Graduates and Their Parents

This workshop explores a path to success in college (and tips for parents who are cheering them on). Topics will focus on academic success, social life, time management, finances, and what it takes to transition successfully to a post-graduation career. Topics for parents will include how to encourage and support students without being accused of “helicopter parenting.”

I'd Love to Go to a Christian College, But How Can We Afford It?

High School Students and Parents

This workshop explores ways to make the private college experience affordable. Topics will include the college search process, how to maximize institutional scholarships, and how to find outside scholarships. The discussion will also include an introduction to the financial aid process along with real talk about expenses, long-term financial considerations, and critical questions to ask.

The Classic Learning Test: Making the Most of It!

Middle and High School Students and Parents

This workshop will feature information about the CLT8, CLT10, and CLT with a discussion of how to prepare, how to succeed on the exams, and how to strengthen your homeschool education based on the results. Other topics will include scholarships, the college search, and how to maximize the benefits of taking the CLT. (This workshop requires access to a screen, preferably with a screen sharing feature for real time demonstration of an online practice exam).
